Fighting Against Forced Labour and Child Labour in Supply Chains Act Report for Fiscal Year Ended June 30, 2025

Introduction

The Federal Government requires various businesses entities involved with the production, sale, distribution, or importation of goods to prepare a Fighting Against Forced Labour and Child Labour in Supply Chains Act (Canada) (the “Act”) report and submit an online questionnaire regarding our international supply chains. The report outlines steps we have taken during the prior fiscal year to prevent and reduce the risk of forced or child labour in our international supply chains.

Organization, Operations, and Supply Chains

This report has been prepared by Westview Investment Inc. on behalf of the TB Group of Companies, comprised of Westview Investment Inc., T-Brothers Food & Trading LTD, Manna International Trading LTD, Hannam Supermarket Inc., 651428 BC LTD, 1116087 BC LTD, 1405849 BC LTD, 1470148 BC LTD, 1116082 BC LTD, and 1116089 BC LTD (collectively, the “TB Group”).

The TB Group was founded in 1994 and has since been in the business of importing, wholesaling, manufacturing, and retailing food, houseware, and grocery related products. It is a privately owned Canadian business that operates several food wholesale and retail businesses within Canada. These businesses are centrally managed and controlled by Westview Investment Inc. Having operated since 1994, the TB Group has worked intimately with many of its suppliers for several years.

The TB Group, through its T-Brothers Food & Trading and Manna International wholesale operations, imports food products (including grains, seasonings, traditional food ingredients, seafood, noodles, beverages, snacks, desserts, canned foods, and various processed foods) from several Asian and North American nations including Korea, China, Vietnam, Japan, and the United States. We work with a wide range of suppliers including several well-known food businesses all the way down to smaller private operations.

On the retail end, HNS Hannam Supermarket, operates supermarkets and smaller food retail stores offering a range of Asian foods within British Columbia.

Additionally, the TB Group manufactures and produces food items locally for sale within Canada including traditional Korean foods like ‘kimchi’ under our brand, Hankook Kimchi, and baked goods through our Good Morning Bakery operations.

Preventing Risks of Forced and Child Labour

We believe that the growth and sustainability of a business is rooted in part by strong long-term business partnerships with our international suppliers. The importation and manufacturing of foods is complex and is heavily regulated by government organizations in both Canada and originating nations. As part of fostering bonds like this, the TB Group's management frequently visits overseas suppliers' facilities to review their operations. These physical on-site inspections are important for maintaining transparent relationships with our overseas suppliers.

We expect our international suppliers to not only stand by their food products' safety, but also that such imported goods are not unethically sourced through forced and child labour. Should the TB Group become aware of any such ethical concerns, we are currently prepared to reassess and potentially sever business relationships with offending suppliers.

Unfortunately, there may be latent risks of forced or child labour throughout the food and related products supply chain that we may not be aware of. Given the increasing importance of such efforts, as evidenced by the Government of Canada's recent initiatives, the TB Group is examining additional ways in which it can reasonably identify these types of social risks.

The TB Group has started implementing anti-bribery, anti-corruption, child labour, and forced labour policies. Additionally, we have started imposing similar requirements within our suppliers' agreements. Several of the TB Group's mainstream customers have also begun implementing similar policies.

We are open to reviewing what the industry requires and aiming to further implement preventative strategies on these matters.

Remediation and Implementation Policies

The TB Group has not identified or become aware of any forced or child labour incidents or involvement in its supply chain for the previous fiscal year. As such, there have been no actions taken to remediate any forced labour, child labour, or loss of income to vulnerable families within our supply chain.

Forced and child labour is a complex international issue which requires long-term and industry-specific preventative strategies, benchmarks, and data. The food importation industry inherently may be exposed to such risks and the TB Group is looking into the development and implementation of measures it can take to help prevent force or child labour. As part of this process, the TB Group is looking into ways to assess the effectiveness of any such policies and training it may incorporate into its business operations and establish compliance regimes where feasible and effective.

The TB Group plans to include policies on these subject matters during its next employment and operational policy overhaul. Assessment of any identification, prevention, and response to such risks are currently handled on a case-by-case basis. However, we have not become aware of any such issues to date.

Identifying Risks of Forced and Child Labour

As per the Responsible Sourcing Tool (www.responsiblesourcingtool.org), there are potential risks of forced and child labour in Korea, China, Vietnam, and Japan within their respective agricultural and fishing industries. As such, the risks of forced and child labour may exist within international food supply chains. As mentioned earlier, the TB Group has not become aware of any such concerns within its own supply chain but is developing policies and practices to respond to such concerns.

Approval and Attestation
